CAISER KEPT THE HITS DOWN.

Only Four Bingles Were Made Off Heine by the Hard Hitting Westmoreland County Team—O'Hara, a New Man, Played Well.

Well, we broke the spell. J. Plu vious, in his goodness of heart, held off the rain long enough for the locals to take Greensburg into camp by the tune of 7 to 3. It was a one-ining slaughter. In the sixth the dome hove made enough runs to beat the visitors to a frazzle. After that one seance there wasn't enough nerve in the Red Sox to win a game of croquet Long Bill Powell, the telegraph pole who makes a stagger at covering al the positions on the Greensburg nine quit cold after that drubbing. He beld on an average of three consulta-tions a minute with his pitchers, but to no avail.

That Greensburg aggregation looks Ike a bunch of bush leaguers. Their uniforms don't match. There aren't three on the toam allke. As for playing, well, they simply handed the game out and the home boys weren't mussing any opportunities to grab it.

At looked as though Connellsville might score in the first. Hart drew a lass and went to second on O'Hara's single. Parson's sacrifice advanced both men a sack. Francis tried to work the squeeze, with fatal results The signal came and Danny-Hart ran almost to the home plate. Chip stab-bed at the ball and missed. As a consequence Danny was nipped at third. Francis then struck out

The home boys broke into the run column in the third. Moran waiked, went to third on Hart's pretty single and scored when Stilwell let McCorry's throw to second go past him.

Hopes dropped like a shot when Greensburg got into the run game in the sixth. Harlow walked, Reed singled and both men took an extra base on Powell's sacrifice. Moran fielded the ball and threw bad to Birmingham, who let the sphere get into left field. Harlow tallied. Everybody field. Harlow tallied. Every played in for a bunt the next and Amsbry left a wide space between third and second uncovered. Charlie Nugent grasped the opportunity and the but both at the same time and sent a single cutting into middle field, two more runs coming across the glad gum. This ended the scoring, how

With a feeling of despair that the game was all up. Connellsville rooters saw their men but up in the last of the sixth. Tiffany opened with a single. Amsbry laid a nice one down which Catcher Reed attempted to field and knocked foul. Tit look second Umpire O'Brien declaring the ball fast Greensburg did a lot of beefing, but couldn't make their bluff work. Tit fany scored from second on Moran's single. McAvoy's fumble of Gaiser's grounder filled the bases. McCorry then decided it was too hot on the ground. He took a balloon uscension Two runs were forced when Hart wa-hit and O'Hara drew four wide one-Parson's single scored Galser while Hart and O Hara trotted home on Birmingham's single. Parsons got as far as third but couldn't score

This ended the scoring on both sides and the nothing doing sign was out.
With none out in the Sixth Whitmore succeeded McCorry and the clange worked well, Connollsville getting but two hits off his delivery. Following is the score:

Notes of the Game.

Hart juggled a number of chances but was quick enough to beat the run per to first on his throws. His one er ror was on an easy grounder.

McCorry pitched a good game for a youngster. The tenin back of bim hid down in one inning.

Birmingham's one error was disas but it wasn't altogether the little fellow's fault. Moran fielded the bunt and delu't throw the ball until the runner had almost reached third The throw wouldn't have won a prize, but Birmy had the ball in his mitt.

There is one thing that Francis can not do and that is bunt. He tried to in the first inning, but couldn't even touch the ball when Hart ran in. When it comes to limming it out; well Chip's there with the goods all right The outfield worked better yesterday than at any previous time this season. Seven putouts by the fellows in the right field like a bird, but Chip was Johnny-on-the-spot when it fell. tall grass and not a miscue. Keen it boys. At the boginning of the game Greensburg was wild to have O'Brien umpire. At the close of it they blamed the defeat on him. Such a the inconstancy of a ball team. Stillwell made a pretty one-hand catch of Tiffany's line drive in the second. That boy's the original grand-stand player. He delivers the goods. Big Bill Powell didn't get a hit. It was worth the price of admission to hear him beef when O'Brien called a strike on him in the second liming. Bill is about six feet three in his socks and because the ball looked a little bit high he kicked. To get them tro high for Powell Colors would have too high for Powell, Gaiser would have to aim at the top of the grandstand.

Gaiser struck out three men in succession in the ninth. They didn't even ake the trouble to swipe at the ball. By the way, perhaps Heine wasn' working nice yesterday Francis caught two files. Both wore ilflicult. The first sailed around over specials.

The American citizen has stood for more imposition in the matter of cigars than in anything else he buys with money

In fact, he's so used to being "worked" by the cigar manufacturer day after day, that he's pretty near come to believe there's no way of knowing what he is getting, anyhow.

The American Cigar Company stands for full value in eigars. It believes the man with five cents to invest is entitled to get his money's worth as much as the investor in any other property.

It is against box-stuffing, against substitution, against shoddy, poor cigars' and against every kind of cigar imposition on the public,—and it is adopting every possible method of exposing them.

It believes the only way to build up a great and permanent business is to deal honestly with the people. to give good value and uniform dependable quality all

Stockholders' Inspector Reports on splendid progress of international number & development co.

Once a year the stockholders of this company elections of their number to visit their property and make a thorough inspection. Dr. Evert Van Slyke, of New York, the representative chosen this year, has just returned, enthusiastic over the development and wonderful resources of the plantation. Dr. Van Slyke's opinion may be judged by the conclusion of his report to the stockholders, in which he says:

I am not only really to confirm all that the first inspector has said, has also to declare that the liberature of the Company not only has not overstown the pleture but cound not if it desired put the whole truth before the public. The proposition is non-great. Their assured dividends are beyond permittenture. Mahogany, cedin and the many other varieties of hard woods now growing on the Company's property would side no pay those dividends for years to come, leaving the logwood, wild rubber trees, chiefe (chowing gum) and fruit assets out of the reckoning. With the great plantings of hencount to come up in a few years there will be an increase of dividends that will be a surprise.

EVERT VAN SLYKE, New York, June 3d, 1997.

Dr. Van Slyke's complete report is a large booklet handsomely illustrated with photographs taken by members of his party. Sent free to any address—write at once.

Dr. Van Slyke's statements are supported by the verdict of several other large stockholders who returned on May 25th of this year from a visit to the piontation, made at their own expense. Let us send you the statements of these men, whose personal observation leaves them not only satisfied but dehented with the prospects of their investment.

Copyright, 1900, by McGlure, Phillips & Co.

"Oh, oh!" she whispered with a dry throat and fell back in the carriage.

"Is it so?" cried the duke.

"I do not know. I-cannot tell."

"One moment more. I begged these gentlemen to allow me to wipe out the insult I had unhappily offered to Bath, but particularly to you. They agreed not to forestall me or to interfere. I left Sir John Wimpledon's early and arranged to give the sorry rascal a lashing under your own eyes, a satisfaction due the lady into whose presence he had dared to force himself."

"'Noblesse oblige?" said M. Beaucaire in a tone of gentle in-

"And now, madam," said the duke, "I will detain you not one second longer. I plend the good purpose of my intentions, begging you to believe that the desire to avenge a hateful outrage, next to the wish to serve you, forms the dearest motive in the heart of Win-

"Brave!" cried Beaucaire softly.

Lady Mary loaned toward him, a thriving terror in her eyes. "It is false?" she faltered.

"Monsieur should not have been born so high. He could have made little book'."

"You mean it is false?" she cried breathlessly.

"'Od's blood, is she not convinced?" broke out Mr. Bantison. "Fellow, were you not the ambassador's barber ?"

"It is all false?" she whispered.

"The mos' fine art, mademoiselle. How long you think it take M. de Winterset to learn that speech after he write it out? It is a mix of what is true and the mos' chaste art. Monsieur has become a man of letters. Perhaps he may enjoy that more than the wars. Ha, ha!"

Mr. Bantison burst into a roar of laughter. "Do French gentlemen fight lackeys? Ho, ho, ho! A pretty country! We English do as was done tonight-have our servants beat them.'

"And attend ourselves," added M. Beaucaire, looking at the duke, "somewhat in the background? But, pardon," he mocked, "that remind' me. Francois, return to Mr. Bantison and these gentlemen their weapons."

"Will you answer a question?" said Molyneux mildly.

"Oh, with pleasure, monsiour."

"Were you ever a barber?"

"No, monsieur," laughed the young man.

"Pah!" exclaimed Bantison. "Let me question him. Now, fellow, a confession may save you from jail. Do you deny you are Beaucaire?"

"Deny to a such judge?"

"Hal" said Bantison. "What more do you want, Molyneux; Fellow, do you deny that you came to London in the ambassador's

"No, I do not dany."

"He admits it! Didn't you come as his barber ?"

"Yes, my frien', as his burber."

Lady Mary cried out faintly and, shuddering, put both hands over her eyes.

"I'm sorry," said Melyneux. "You fight like a gentleman."

"I thank you, mousieur." "You called yourself Braucaire?"

"Yes, monsieur." He was swaying to and fro. His servants ran to support him.

"I wish" -- continued Molynoux, hesitating. "Evil take me, but "Assist Sir Hugh into my carriage," said Lady Mary.

"Farewell, mademoische!" M. Beaucaire's voice was very faint. His eyes were fixed upon her face. She did not look toward him.

They were propping Sir Hugh on the cushions. The duke rode up close to Beaucaire, but Francois seized his bridle fiercely and forced the horse back on its haunches.

"The man's servants worship him," said Molyneux.

"Curse your insolence!" exclaimed the duke. "How much am I to bear from this variet and his variets? Beaucaire, if you have not left Bath by tomorrow noon, you will be clapped into jail, and the lashing you escaped tonight shall be given you thrice tenfold!"

"I shall be-in the-assembly-room' at 9-o'clock, one week -from-tonight," answered the young man, smiling jauntily, though his lips were colorless. The words cost him nearly all his breath and strength. "You mus' keep-in the-backgroun', monsieur. Ha, ha!"

The door of the coach closed with a slam-

"Mademoiselle-fare-well!"

"Drive on!" said Lady Mary,

M. Beaucaire followed the carriage with his eyes. As the noise of the wheels and the hoof beats of the accompanying cavalende grow fainter in the distance the handkerchief he had held against his side dropped into the white dust, a heavy red splotch.

"Only-roses," he gasped and fell back in the arms of his servante

CHAPTER V.

EAU NASH stood at the door of the rooms, smiling blandly upon a dainty throng in the pink of its finery and gay furbelows. The great exquisite ben: his body constantly in a series of consummately ad justed bows-before a great downger, seeming to sweep the floor in august deference; somewhat stately to the young bucks; greeting the wits wit' gracious friendliness and a twinkle of raillery; inclining with fatherly gallantry before the beauties; the degree of his inclination measured the altitude of the recipient as accurately as a nicely calculated sand glass measures the hours.

The king of Bath was happy, for wit, beauty, fashion-to speak more concretely, nobles, belles, gamesters, beaux, statesmen and poets -made fairyland (or opera bouffe, at least) in his dominions; play ran higher and higher, and Mr. Nash's coffers filled up with gold. To erown his pleasure, a prince of the French blood, the young Comte de Beaujolais, just arrived from Paris, had reached Bath at noon in state, accompanied the Marquis de Mirepoin, the ambassador of Louis XV. The beau dearly prized the society of the lofty, and the present visit was an honor to Bath; hence to the master of ceremonics. What was better, there would be some profitable hours with the cards and dice. So it was that Mr. Nucl. smiled never more benignly than on that bright evening. The rooms rang with the silvery voices of women and delightful laughter while the fiddles went merrily, their melodies chiming sweetly with the joyance of his mood.

The skill and braven effrontery of the ambassador's secondrelly servant in passing himself off for a man of condition formed the point of departure for every conversation. It was discovered that there were but three persons present who had not suspected him from the first; and, by a singular paradox, the most astute of all proved to be old Mr. Bicksit, the traveler, once a visitor at Chateaurien; for he, according to report, had by a coup of diplomacy entrapped the impostor into an admission that there was no such place. However, like poor Captain Badger, the worthy old man had held his peace out of regard for the Duko of Winterset. This nobleman, heretofore secretly disliked, suspected of irregular devices at play and never admired, had won admiration and popularity by his remorae for the mistake and by the modesty of his attitude in endeavoring to atone for it, without presuming upon the privilege of his rank to laugh at the indignation of society; an action the more praiseworthy because his exposure of the impostor entitled the disclosure of his own culpability in having stood the villain's sponsor. Tonight, the happy gentleman, with Lady Mary Carlisle upon his arm, went grandly about the rooms, sowing and reaping a harvest of smiles. "Twas said work would be begun at once to rebuild the duke's countryseat, while several ruined Jews might be paid out of prison. Teople gazing on the beauty and the stately but modest here by her side said they would make a noble pair. She had long been distinguished by his attentions, and he had come brilliantly out of the episode of the Frenchman, who had been his only real rival. Wherever they went there arose a buzz of pleasing gossip and adulation.
